The Nebraska Supreme Court approved the nomination of Judge Roland, whose name was submitted by his fellow county court judges for the leadership position.

Judge Roland was appointed to the county court bench on May 12, 2006 after having served as the chief deputy county attorney for Cheyenne County since 2003 and as a deputy county attorney from 1995 to 2003. Prior to returning to Nebraska in 1995, he maintained a private legal practice in Rapid City, S.D. where he engaged in general practice. Presiding judges also bear the responsibility for overseeing personnel matters for the district and provide county courts in the area with direction in matters of local district policy.
